

Stylish Hair Ornaments

First aid to beauty, now that the elaborate round of social functions reaches its height. As birthday gifts, nothing would be more acceptable to the refined woman or miss.

The broadness and scope of our stock offers you a great variety of beautiful Hair Ornaments

Braid Pins, with rhinestone settings; Fancy and Plain Barrettes in demilune or shell, Fancy Braid Combs, Push Combs and Back Combs handsome a unium Bardeaux, Barrettes and Pins, all reasonably priced from 25c to $10

Kaufmann & Company

Corner Fourth and Broad Streets.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

The dance last evening given by the Richmond German Club in the ballroom of the Richmond Hotel was a brilliant social event. The music was furnished by the orchestra of the hotel, and the dancing was done by the club members and their guests. The refreshments were served by the club members, and the evening was a most successful one.

Among the out-of-town guests present at the German Club were Captain and Mrs. Westmoreland Davis, of Leesburg; Mrs. Elsie Fielding Miles, of the University of Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. David B. Tennant, of Leesburg.

Rolls That Hit The Spot

The best rolls, bread and cake are, naturally, made from the best flour—

Dunlop Flour

HAMMOND

"Flowers of Guaranteed Freshness."

Tel. Madison 630.

The Velvet Kind

PURITY ICE CREAM Same Quality Every Day. Monroe 1581.

Sale of Odd Lots of Chiffoniers, Rockers, Mattings etc. now at AFTER-INVETORY Reductions

RYAN-SMITH

HAVE YOU SEEN THE New Method Gas Ranges AT

PETTIT & CO.'S?

THE REINACH CO., Inc.

107 E. BROAD STREET. MILLINERY—Women's and Misses' Outer Apparel.

THE FREED CO.

101 EAST BROAD STREET.

onticello Is Radio-Active

The Comet Heater

Self Feeder More sold than any other heater in Richmond. Prices, $18.50 and $22.60. Set up FREE.

Rountree-Sutherland-Cherry Corp.

Miss Julia Whitney A. Demarest General Shopping. No Charge. Terms cash. Samples and prices submitted. Bank reference.

189 Claremont Ave., New York City.

hold its annual pound party to-day at the infirmary building. Some of the leading women of Richmond are on the board of managers of this institution and a committee will receive at the infirmary all day.

Silver Tea To-Morrow. Mrs. Elise Miles, of the auspices of Circle No. 6, All Saints' Church Guild, will be given to-morrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at 516 West Franklin Street.

In and Out of Town. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blecher, of Winnipeg, Canada, are at the Jefferson Hotel this week.

Harry Mann has returned to Norfolk, after a visit to Governor and Mrs. William Hodges Mann at his Executive Mansion.

Mrs. H. H. Love, of East Orange, N. J., will visit Mrs. Samuel E. Love at the Chesterfield next week.

Mrs. Sidney Hirsch, of Lynchburg, arrived in Richmond yesterday to visit relatives.

Mrs. May and Julia Grant Moore left last week to spend some time traveling abroad.

Miss Elise Miles, of the University of Virginia, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Scott.

Misses Marguerite and Shirley Manor, of Harrisonburg, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. C. H. Urner, of 1608 Grove Avenue. Miss Marguerite Manor will go to Florida in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills Blair have sold their home in Amelia, "The Hermitage," and are now with their cousin, Mrs. William T. Pettway, at 100 South First Street, for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. David B. Tennant are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Bryan, at Laburnum.

Miss Margaret Corrigan has returned to Lynchburg, after visiting in Richmond and Norfolk.

Miss Octavia Arlington, of Greenville, S. C., is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Henry Ingram, at 830 West Grace Street.

Miss Maggie Watts, who has been visiting in this city and Petersburg, has returned to Norfolk.

Miss Mary Moss, of Lynchburg, is spending some time with friends in this city.

J. Haskins Hobson has returned to his home in Powhatan County, after a brief stay in Richmond.

Mrs. M. A. Nebel is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Marshall, 1433 Hull Street, South Richmond.

Miss Elizabeth Clemmer, of Middlebrook, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. John D. Clothier, here, was called suddenly home yesterday on account of illness in the family.

Glenn Bowman. Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 26.—Announcement is made of the marriage of William C. Glenn, of Waynesboro, and Miss Constance Bowman, of Bridge-water, daughter of the late Dr. Bowman, and Mrs. Susanne Bowman. The marriage was a great surprise, the most intimate friends of the bride not knowing of it until a few hours before the ceremony, when the bride was invited to supper at the bride's home. The groom is associated with his father in the J. A. Glenn Lumber Company.

BATTLE BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH

Ridgely Lady Tells of Her Fierce Struggle and How She Finally Won

Ridgely, Tenn.—"If it had not been for Cardui, the woman's tonic," says Mrs. Jennie Estes, of this town, "I honestly believe I would have been in my grave to-day. Therefore, I want to say something good for Cardui, but I can't begin to say enough."

I was sick a-bed with womanly troubles from February until October, and was in very bad condition. I was treated three or four times a week, but it did me no good.

I battled between life and death, and my husband thought surely I would die.

One day I thought I would give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial. I had no confidence in it at all, but bought a bottle. In a few days I was up and doing my housework. Now I have gained 15 pounds and feel as well as I ever felt in my life.

I advise all sick and suffering women to try Cardui. It cured me when all other medicines failed.

If you are weak, tired, worn-out or suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, pains in arm, side or limbs, or any other symptoms of womanly trouble, you are urged to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. We think it will help you.

N. E. Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattemedical Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.—Advertisement.

At the Woman's Club. The Virginia Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage will meet this afternoon at headquarters, 205 East Franklin Street. The association will meet on Tuesday afternoon of each week, and all desiring information and literature are cordially invited.

A called meeting of the Williams Memorial Circle of King's Daughters will be held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Jenkins, 1338 Monument Avenue, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The meeting is a very important one.

Richmond Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold their eighteenth annual meeting for the election of officers at the Camp Hall on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Norman V. Randolph, president of the chapter, will preside.

Quiet Wedding. A quiet marriage was celebrated on Saturday afternoon at the residence of Dr. T. McPadden, 807 West Franklin Street, when Miss Josephine Cole became the bride of Samuel A. Grace. The bride, formerly made her home in Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. Thurnham will be at home, at 708 East Clay Street, Richmond.

At the Woman's Club. The Virginia Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage will meet this afternoon at headquarters, 205 East Franklin Street. The association will meet on Tuesday afternoon of each week, and all desiring information and literature are cordially invited.

A called meeting of the Williams Memorial Circle of King's Daughters will be held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Jenkins, 1338 Monument Avenue, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The meeting is a very important one.

Richmond Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy will hold their eighteenth annual meeting for the election of officers at the Camp Hall on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Norman V. Randolph, president of the chapter, will preside.

Quiet Wedding. A quiet marriage was celebrated on Saturday afternoon at the residence of Dr. T. McPadden, 807 West Franklin Street, when Miss Josephine Cole became the bride of Samuel A. Grace. The bride, formerly made her home in Knoxville, Tenn., and Mrs. Thurnham will be at home, at 708 East Clay Street, Richmond.

At the Woman's Club. The Virginia Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage will meet this afternoon at headquarters, 205 East Franklin Street. The association will meet on Tuesday afternoon of each week, and all desiring information and literature are cordially invited.

A called meeting of the Williams Memorial Circle of King's Daughters will be held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Jenkins, 1338 Monument Avenue, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The meeting is a very important one.

Thalhimer's Last Day of the Linen Sale

Hundreds of customers came, saw and bought liberally of the great linen values offered yesterday, realizing that it is a rare occasion that linens of the Thalhimer standard of quality are sold at one-fourth less than their regular price.

Knowing that there are still many of our friends and patrons who, for one reason and another, were not among the fortunate buyers of yesterday, we take this opportunity to remind them that they still have a chance to supply their linen needs.

OFF FOR EAST AFRICA TO FIND HEART EASE

Prince William of Sweden Hopes to Forget Matrimonial Troubles.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FONTENAY. PRINCE WILLIAM of Sweden, the object of getting over his matrimonial misfortunes, and the loss of his fascinating and enormously wealthy Russian wife—who could not resign herself to the dearliness of life at the court of Stockholm, and insisted on a dissolution of her marriage—has started for East Africa, for the purpose of undertaking there an extensive shooting expedition.

Under ordinary circumstances, he would be welcomed by the British authorities and wealthy settlers there, with that generous hospitality which they accord to well-nigh every visitor of birth and breeding. But it is quite possible that Prince William may find a cold shoulder turned towards him.

For he has just published a book on the tour which he undertook with his wife a couple of years ago through British India, the Straits Settlements and French Indo-China. British and French officials did everything in their power to render that trip agreeable, and welcomed him with the greatest cordiality and every facility and everything that could contribute to their comfort and pleasure.

The prince in his book makes a sorry return for all the kindness which he and his wife received at the hands of his British and French hosts. For where he does not criticize, he indulges in ridicule at their expense, expatiating on their oddities and upon the peculiarities of their hospitality, while he goes on to say that he is a failure and to condemn the methods of English rule in India and in the Straits Settlements, and of France in her great dependency of Indo-China.

As far as India is concerned, the prince relates his associations with the native leaders of the anti-British movement, and does not hesitate to express his warm sympathy with their wrongs and with their aspirations—these aspirations being for emancipation from British rule. Under the circumstances, it will not be surprising if William of Sweden finds that the English authorities and settlers in East Africa will restrict themselves to according to him, the most distant sort of courtesy.

Although the late Michael Ephrussi was a prominent figure on the French turf, and a leader of the racing world, one of the largest racing stables in France, and had the Grand Prix and a number of other wins of classic events to his credit, yet he never succeeded in securing his election to the French Jockey Club, which is the membership of the Cercle de la Rue Royale, one of the most exclusive clubs in Paris, was severed under very sensational circumstances.

The fact of the matter is that Michael Ephrussi, who married the daughter of the late Baron Alphonse Rothschild, sister, therefore, of Edouard de Rothschild, the present head of the Paris branch of the great international banking house) was one of the most thoroughly detested men in Paris, and I cannot think of any one who has more frequently been held up to public obloquy in novels and plays, under the most transparent of pseudonyms, and under his own name in the public press. His wins on the turf were often the subject of popular charges of unfairness, and on several notable occasions, on the race course, he was not only hooted and hissed, but even attempts were made by the public to lynch him.

Both he and his brother, Maurice, were natives of Odessa, where their father was engaged in speculative operations in grain. They came to Paris as young men, to take charge of the Paris branch of their father's business, and soon acquired large fortunes. It is difficult to understand, however, how so clever a couple as the late Baron Alphonse Rothschild and his wife could have given their daughter in marriage to Michael Ephrussi. For he never managed to assimilate Parisian polish and ways, was forever either giving offense or exposing himself to ridicule by his Odessa mannerisms and meannesses, and naturally the marriage did not prove a success.

The incident that led to his more or less complete resignation from the Cercle de la Rue Royale was one in which the Vicomte Gaston de Breteuil (who has an American wife in Miss Edith Grant, of New York, daughter of Mrs. Beach Grant) played a leading part. Gaston de Breteuil, at the time when he was married to the Countess de Breteuil, was a very successful speculator through the house of Ephrussi, and lost a sum amounting to 600,000 francs, some of his friends, who had gone into the speculation on Ephrussi's suggestion that it was a sure thing, likewise being heavily involved.

Gaston de Breteuil happened to be in South America when the losses took place, and when he returned some weeks later, he discovered not only that Michael Ephrussi had shown himself particularly impatient and offensive in his treatment of the Countess de Breteuil's friends, but had also been indulging in uncomplimentary remarks about his, De Breteuil's, absence from France.

Breteuil waited for a few days, making investigations, which resulted in his conviction that he had been deliberately deceived by Ephrussi. So he made up his mind that he would silence the talk by paying his losses to Ephrussi in the most public manner possible.

He waited till 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Cercle de la Rue Royale was crowded with members on their way back from the Bois, and thereupon approached Michael Ephrussi in the big room that looks out into the Rue Royale, thrust the wad of bank notes into Ephrussi's face, seizing and cruelly twisting the Ephrussi nose therewith, the nose being badly scratched by the pins which fastened the bundle of bank notes together. At the same time he apostrophized him as a swindler, and with other insulting epithets.

As Ephrussi allowed a month to pass without any demand upon De Breteuil for satisfaction, De Breteuil himself sent his seconds to Ephrussi, demanding that he should fight a duel with him. This Ephrussi declined to do, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

Some months later, Ephrussi, finding life well-nigh intolerable, through the ostracism which had fallen to his share in consequence of this episode, endeavored to retrieve his position by announcing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, who was now a millionaire, declined to do so, on the score of ill health, but he made a strange offer of distributing, in lieu thereof, a sum of a million francs among the Paris poor. De Breteuil accepted this alternative, on the stipulation that it should be accompanied by Ephrussi's resignation from the club of the Rue Royale.

To this Ephrussi likewise consented when he learned that the governors of the club were considering the question of his expulsion for refusing to fight, after having allowed himself to be treated with such obloquy on the club premises.

nouncing his readiness to fight De Breteuil. But the latter, on the advice of the leading authorities in Paris on such matters, declined to afford satisfaction to Ephrussi, on the ground that the latter had placed himself "hors l'honneur" by his behavior in declining to fight, after having his nose publicly tweaked, and that he was disqualified, in consequence, from crossing swords or exchanging pistol shots with any gentleman on the field of honor.

After that Ephrussi was cut out by most of his leading colleagues in Paris, who were indignant at his conduct, and the only people who continued to be in intercourse with him were members of that nondescript foreign colony on the banks of the Seine, and certain French people of rank, who were willing to put up with his society for the sake of the pecuniary advantages to be derived therefrom.

I may add that in this De Breteuil-Ephrussi imbroglio, there was no question of any racial antagonism, since both the Marquis de Breteuil (who is married to Miss Lita Garner, of New York) and his brother-in-law, Gaston, are grandsons, through their mother, of the well-known Hebrew financier, Achille Fould, who played so conspicuous a role as Minister of State and as banker during the reign of Napoleon III. (Copyright, 1914 by the Brentwood Company.)

ORDINANCE IS UPHOLD

Court Decides City Has Right to Impose Income Tax.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—In the Corporation Court to-day, Judge R. S. Kerr rendered a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the city income tax, levying an income tax. Captain J. N. McFarland and J. Martin Perry, of this city, had brought suit to recover from the city taxes levied and collected under an income tax ordinance. It is understood the case will be taken to the Supreme Court of Appeals.

Receives "Dr." Petition.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Fredericksburg, Va., January 26.—A number of citizens gathered at the Baptist Church this morning about 10 o'clock, to meet there by the State Senator, R. C. L. Stafford, by request. A petition with about 200 names, which had been hurriedly gotten up, was presented to Senator Stafford, who was asked to support the enabling act when it comes up in the Senate. The petition was read and the Senator said that he would give it careful consideration. He did not say whether he would support it, but indicated in no way how he would vote.

Beasley-Talley.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Fredericksburg, Va., January 26.—L. H. Beasley, Jr., of Essex County, Miss. and J. Martin Perry, of this city, were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. D. Passagallup, of Tappanhook. They will make their home at Bowling Green.

KILLED BY RUNAWAY.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—A runaway accident near Staunton to-day, killed a young man, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse. The victim was a young man, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse. The victim was a young man, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse.

WOMAN BRUTALLY SLAIN.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—A woman was brutally slain by a runaway horse. The victim was a woman, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse. The victim was a woman, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse.

Negro Is Suspected of Murder to Cover Other Crime.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—Johnston County coroner's jury investigating the murder of Mrs. William Lynch, a well-known citizen of Staunton, who was killed by a runaway horse, probably assaulted her and used an ax he found on the premises literally to split her head open in two directions. The bloody ax was found near a sawmill camp, sticking in a stump. Part of her clothing was found near the sawmill camp, which was a negro-owned sawmill camp, who has disappeared, is suspected of the crime. The body was found in the track of the murderer.

BURIED IN FLAG HE LOVED.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—With the American flag wrapped around him and a pistol volley in farewell above his head, the body of a young man, who was killed by a runaway horse, was buried in the National cemetery here. The body was found in the track of the murderer.

For Years Its Folds Had Flashed Above His Hut.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—With the American flag wrapped around him and a pistol volley in farewell above his head, the body of a young man, who was killed by a runaway horse, was buried in the National cemetery here. The body was found in the track of the murderer.

WILSON—PATRIM.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—Floyd E. Wilson, of Richmond, and Miss Lillie L. Patram, of Chesterfield County, Va., were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. D. Passagallup, of Tappanhook. They will make their home at Bowling Green.

An Excellent Lotion For Rough, Course Skin

The hand of Time touches lightly the skin of women who avoid greasy, pore-clogging creams and use some reliable lotion instead. An ideal lotion for the face, neck and arms can be prepared at little cost by dissolving an original package of mayatone in one-half pint with lukewarm water. The use of the mayatone lotion will clear and make soft "muddy," blotchy, rough skin. It is fine for pimples and blackheads and to restore the glow of youth to the rough, aged skin.—Advertisement.

S. Ullman's Son

Down Town Store: 1820-1822 E. Main. Uptown Store: 500 E. Marshall.

Ladies' Kidney Heel Cloth Top Pat. Button Shoe; special at $4.00. Regular $5.00 Shoes.

Hoheimer's

Third and Broad.

25% Discount on all large Gas Ranges.

Rothert & Co.

Hopkins Furniture Co.

7 West Broad St. Cash or Credit.

Get Ready for 1914

Our Office Furniture Department can solve the question of Filing Cabinets, Desks, etc., for the new year. LET US "SHOW YOU."

SYDNOR & HUNDLEY

Save 25 Labels from Eat Mor Bread and get a pair Steel Ball-Bearing Roller Skates for 79c in cash.

Children's School $1 Shoes.

ALBERT STEIN

Cor. 5th and Broad Sts.

McDougall Kitchen Cabinets and Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges make sweet tempered housewives.

JURGENS

Adams and Broad.

Schwarzschild Brothers.

The Wedding Gift

A most attractive feature of this popular store is—that you are always sure to find large assortments of new and exclusive articles, such as cannot be had at smaller stores.

In this collection we give as much attention to the selection of inexpensive pieces as we do to the more elaborate.

Schwarzschild Brothers

Richmond's Leading Jewelers, Second and Broad Sts.

GIRL ATTEMPTS TO TAKE OWN LIFE

Miss Beulah Copeland Fires Bullet Into Breast, but Will Recover.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Danville, Va., January 26.—Miss Beulah Copeland, who resides on Patton Street, made an unsuccessful attempt at self-destruction late this afternoon when she fired a bullet at close range from a .32-calibre pistol into her breast. But for the fact that aid reached her a few seconds after the shooting she would have been buried in a crisis, as her clothes were in a blaze. A note was found on a table, addressed to her mother, reading as follows:

"Dear Mother—I am preparing to leave this hard, cruel world. I hope God forgives me. My life is unbearable. Take my body home and bury me at Uncle Nat's place. Give my love to all, and tell them to be good and serve God in all things. Good-by, mother. 'Your daughter,'

"DEULAH."

The young woman, who is extremely pretty, will recover, as the bullet was turned from its course and did not reach her breast bone. It is stated that she has, on one other occasion tried to end her life by drinking laudanum.

Plunges Into Ice Canal.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Danville, Va., January 26.—Giving as the reason for her act, that she was unhappy and tired of living, Mrs. Thomas Mann, a girl-wife, residing on South Union Street, made an attempt to shake off her real or imaginary troubles here this morning by plunging into the canal's icy water near the concrete bridge. That she was not successful in her attempt, and that she was near death, was seen by several men who were near by, seeing her make the plunge, pulled her from the stream and half-drowned condition. She begged her rescuers to let her die. She will recover.

Wilson—Patram.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—Floyd E. Wilson, of Richmond, and Miss Lillie L. Patram, of Chesterfield County, Va., were married at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. D. Passagallup, of Tappanhook. They will make their home at Bowling Green.

WOMAN BRUTALLY SLAIN.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—A woman was brutally slain by a runaway horse. The victim was a woman, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse. The victim was a woman, aged thirty-five years, who was thrown from a wagon, and killed by a runaway horse.

Negro Is Suspected of Murder to Cover Other Crime.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Staunton, Va., January 26.—Johnston County coroner's jury investigating the murder of Mrs. William Lynch